Welcome in. Take what helps; leave the rest.

This is a free printable pack for moving gently at any size, at any energy level, on any given day. No apps, no signups, no streaks to lose. Print the page you need, or all of them, and let the rest wait.

> Nothing here knows your weight, your history, or your limits. Pick the sheet that matches today's energy — not the one you wish you had. Some days that's a stretch card. Some days it's the permission slip. Both count.

What's in the pack

- Five-Minute Wake-Up Stretch — one card, six easy moves, done before the coffee cools.
- Chair Exercises — two pages of seated movement for low-energy days.
- Walk-and-Count Mileage Log — walk, count something, jot it down.
- Balance Practice — everyday steadiness, near a counter, at your own pace.
- Water-Sip Tracker — tick sips, not perfection.
- Rest-Day Permission Slip — the official-looking excuse to not move, signed by you.
- Movement Bingo — a monthly card of tiny wins. Any five in a row counts.

Printing tips

- Print at 100% / "Actual size" on letter paper. It scales fine onto A4 too.
- You keep this file; it works offline forever. Nothing is collected, nothing is tracked.

Chair Exercises — Page A

All seated, all in an ordinary chair. Half of page A still counts as a full visit.

Before you start: education only, never exercise prescription. Sit tall-ish but comfortable, feet flat if they reach. If they don't, a folded towel under the feet is a fine fix. Move only with your doctor or physical therapist's clearance.

☐ 1 Seated march

Lift one knee, set it down; other knee, down. Like marching to a slow song. 10 each side, or fewer.

☐ 2 Ankle circles

Lift one foot a little; circle the ankle ten times each direction. Switch. Feet wake up first.

☐ 3 Heel and toe taps

Tap toes up, then heels up, alternating — like pumping a very lazy pedal. 15 total.

☐ 4 Arm punches

Two fists up like the world's politest boxer; punch forward, alternating arms, 10 each. Bad puns encouraged.

☐ 5 Shoulder rolls + overhead reach

Three big rolls backward, then both hands up toward the ceiling as far as comfortable — three times.

How did page A feel? ☐ easy ☐ just right ☐ surprisingly hard (that's a real answer too)

Chair Exercises — Page B

A little more for the legs, so standing up keeps being a thing you do on purpose.

Still education, not prescription. A sturdy chair that doesn't roll is the whole safety plan for this page. Chair near a wall or armrest if you'd like it nearby.

☐ 6 Sit-to-stand, chair-friendly

Stand up using the armrests or knees, sit back down gently. 3–5 times. one is a round; five is a legend.

☐ 7 Calf pumps

Feet flat, lift heels, lower. Like wiggling the legs awake at a desk. 15 slow ones.

☐ 8 Straight-leg hold

Sit tall, extend one leg until it's level, hold 5 seconds, lower slowly. 5 each side if the thigh agrees.

☐ 9 Seated side twist

Right hand to left knee, look gently over your left shoulder; breathe; switch. Range optional, twist tiny.

☐ 10 Seal it with a breath

Hands on thighs, palms down, close eyes if you like. Five slow breaths. That's the whole workout.
